Go Live: From April

Goal

We are introducing a new wave of personalization with enhanced segmentation strategies and use cases that will progressively roll out over the coming months to increase relevance and impact across the user journey.

The next step is to implement the successful personalization on the Search Results Page by launching new tests to re-order Popular Categories.

Description

We will roll out the successful elements of the personalization test—such as the carousel and category reordering based on users' visits—while re-testing category ranking based on category affinity and experimenting with different placements of the carousel and categories. We will also refresh the visuals with the new Love Your Journey assets.

3. Searching for Bestsellers

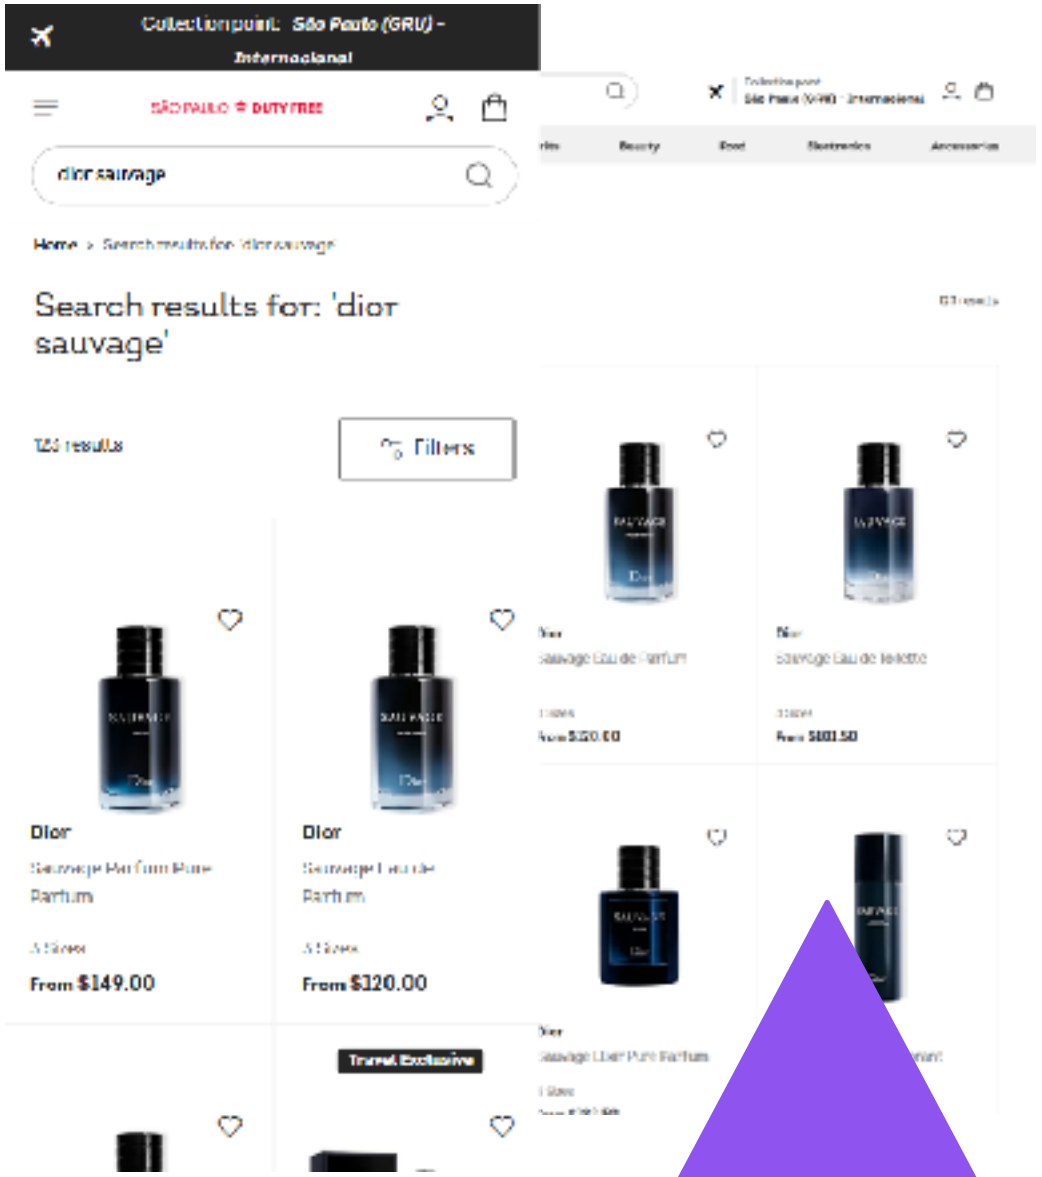
Go Live April

Goal

Continuously identify and address potential issues when users search for bestseller products and top brands, ensuring results are accurate, relevant, and aligned with user expectations.

Description

We are running a new wave of tests focused on global top sellers to validate that search results surface the correct products and to identify and fix potential issues. In parallel, we will also explore different ways users search for top brands to further improve the search experience.



3. Boosting fragrances visibility with optimizers

Go Live April

Goal

Ensure fragrance products are prioritized over less relevant product types in fragrance-related searches, improving result relevance when users search for fragrances and related terms.

Description

Apply optimizers to boost fragrance items over lower-priority product types when relevant. We will monitor user behavior after these adjustments to validate consistent improvements across regions.

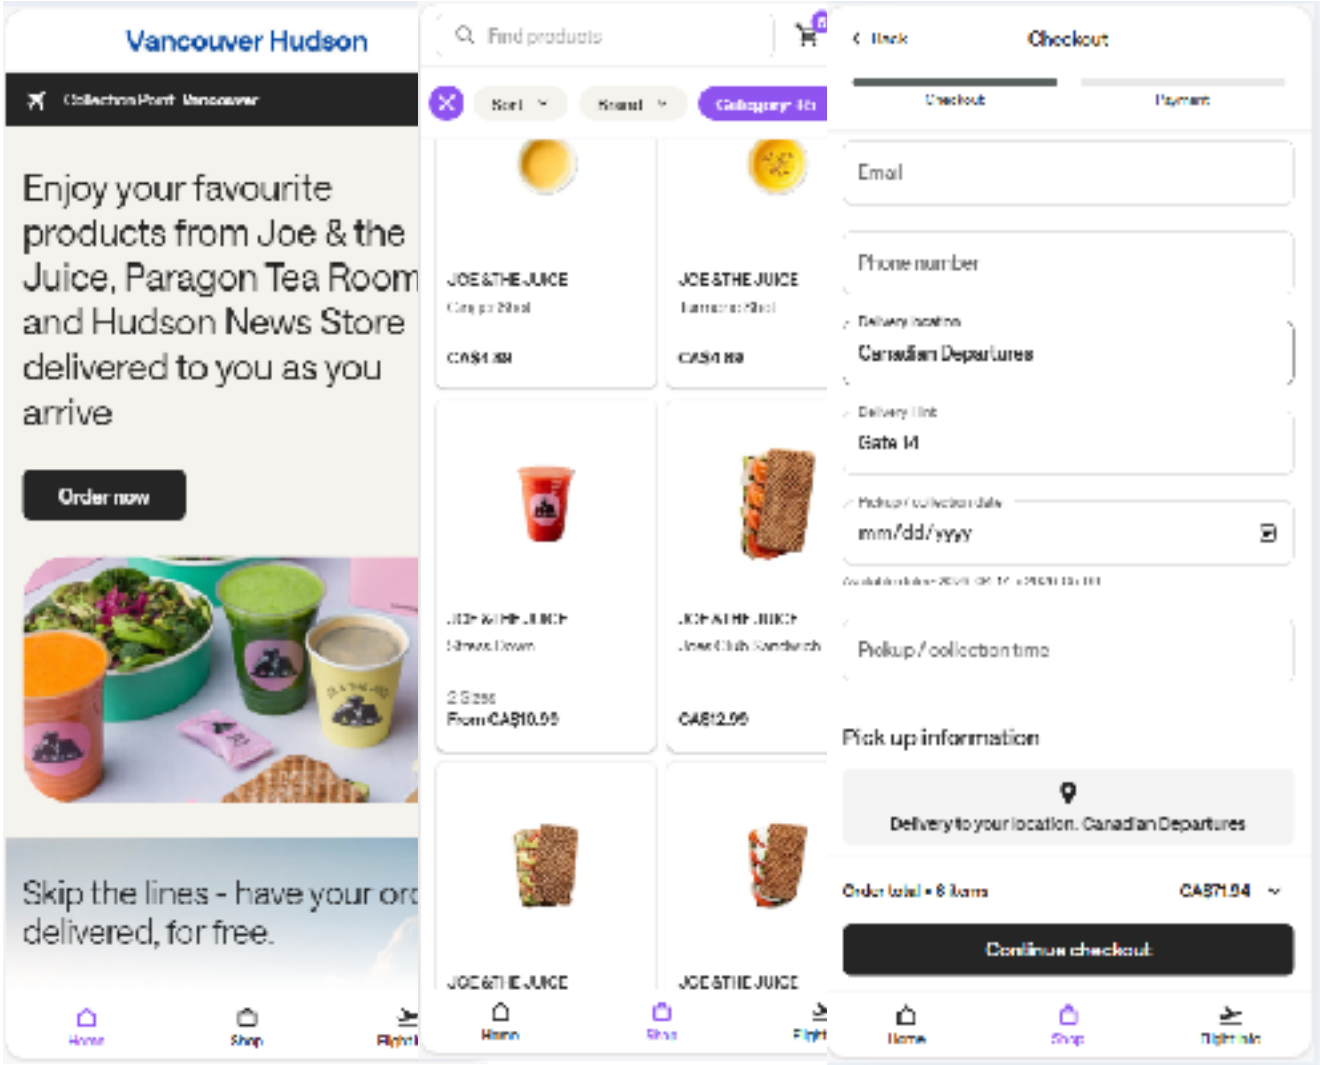
Hudson Vancouver – Digital Catering pilot



Goal

Pilot a digitized catering and bulk ordering solution for Joe & The Juice to support B2B use cases.

Enable business partners and group customers to place and manage catering orders through a dedicated digital interface.

Description

This pilot focuses on introducing a Catering + Ordering format for non-B2C customers such as businesses, tour groups, sports teams, and event organizers.

Currently, catering orders at YVR are handled manually by operations, generating approximately 70k in annualized sales.

The initiative aims to digitize this process by providing a shareable link or QR-based frontend that enables seamless ordering and order management
